Spain expert David Schwarzwälder, is on first-name terms with most Spanish winemakers. He has written several books on Spanish wines, including the standard work “Spain and its Wines” and writes as a freelance journalist for numerous wine media. He shares his knowledge as a lecturer at the German Wine and Sommelier School, the Geisenheim University of Applied Sciences, and numerous hotel management schools.

Did you know that Spain, with around one million hectares, not only has the largest wine-growing area in the world? Today, Spain is also one of the most dynamic wine countries in Europe and the world's largest producer of wines from organic farming. For Spain, the high altitudes are also enormously important in viticulture. Hardly anyone knows that Spain is the highest wine-growing country in Europe after Switzerland. As diverse as the terroirs of the more than 80 protected designations of origin (PDO) are the wines that come from them.

There is much to learn about wine from Spain!

CAVA shows its origins: the new segmentation and zonification rules

The origins of Cava lie in the winemaking area of Penedés, especially in the town of Sant Sadurní d'Anoia and its surroundings, which has earned the title of Cava capital. However, for historical reasons, Cava can also be made in certain other towns and regions. There are four main areas of the D.O. (Designation of Origin) Cava to highlight: COMTATS DE BARCELONA, EBRO VALLEY, VIÑEDOS DE ALMENDRALEJO, LEVANTE ZONE.

Zones, sub-zones and new categories for Cava

2021 is full of new challenges, important steps to continue evolving D.O. Cava's strategy of value and excellence. This will be a key year, with the activation of the ambitious segmentation and zoning project.

The new regulations, approved by the Regulatory Council plenary on 2020, and by the Ministry of Agriculture, Fishing and Food this year, aim to enhance the value of Cava's origin and territory, as well as offering consumers maximum quality guarantees, thereby demonstrating the assurance of superiority and excellence pledged by D.O. Cava.

This way, the provenance of the product can be precisely pinpointed, thereby enriching the experience of each glass of Cava: you can taste the notes added by the soil and the richness of the local microclimate where the wine was made.

The D.O. Cava has a continuous commitment to quality and differentiation: henceforth Cava de Guarda Superior must comply with even more demanding regulations. They must be of 100 % organic origin, and from vineyards over 10 years old; and those in the Reserva category, with a minimum of 18 months aging in the bottle. Furthermore, a distinctive new seal of “integral producer” identifies, and gives added value to, those wineries that carry out the entire winemaking process on the same estate.
